CALIF. OFFICIALS BRIEFED ON OLYMPICS SECURITY

BY JUDI HASSON

Four top California law enforcement officials were briefed by the FBI, CIA and National Security Agency on potential terrorist activities that could affect this summer's Olympics in Los Angeles.

The four officials met Tuesday in Washington with FBI Director William Webster and saw a demonstration of the bureau's new 50-member Hostage Rescue Team, which will be based in Southern California for the games.

An FBI spokesman said the meeting was intended to bring the Los Angeles law enforcement community up to date on top-secret intelligence about terrorist activities.

Richard Bretzing, head of the FBI's Los Angeles bureau; Sherman Block, Los Angeles County sheriff; Daryl Gates, Los Angeles police chief; and Charles Ussery, Long Beach police chief, received briefings from the FBI, CIA and NSA.

"The primary purpose of the meeting was to make these four leaders of the Los Angeles law enforcement community aware of sensitive through top-secret information concerning world affairs and terrorist activities that might impact on law enforcement's responsibilities at the 1984 Summer Olympics," an FBI spokesman said.

During the meeting, the FBI signed a memorandum with the Los Angeles officials outlining mutual cooperation between the agencies during the Olympic Games, scheduled for July 28 to Aug. 12.

Assistant Attorney General Stephen Trott, in an interview Tuesday with United Press International, said he expected close cooperation among various law enforcement agencies.

"The Olympics provides a theater. We hope it's a theater for athletes," Trott said.

FBI Director Webster has expressed concern about the possibility of terrorist acts at the Olympics. He said he expects to increase the FBI's 400 agents in Los Angeles with an additional 250 to 300 agents during the Olympic Games.

Since 11 Israeli athletes were killed by Palestinian terrorist at the 1972 Summer Olympics in Munich, "Elaborate security measures for (Olympic) events has become obligatory," Webster recently told a congressional subcommittee.

Webster also has said the primary threat of terrorism at the Games is posed by Americans and resident aliens living in the United States who decide to act in response to foreign issues.
